

Built in 1595 by Robert Smythson, one of England's foremost Elizabethan architects, Doddington has never been sold (or cleared out) and has been our much-loved family home since 2006.

A visit to Doddington offers a unique insight into family life through the ages and the challenges of looking after such an estate in the 21st century.

We have a wide range of shops, cafés and events here which we hope you will enjoy in the knowledge that all the proceeds go towards the upkeep and conservation of the Hall and Gardens.

We are also working hard to be sustainable, with a range of initiatives across the estate.

We hope you enjoy your visit to Doddington.
